New York

can be very cold sometimes,” says Molly Sims. “I wanted to walk in here and feel warm.” “Here” is the actress’s newly purchased and redecorated Soho apartment, a collection of rich, cozy, denlike rooms that blend—to striking effect—a romantic Old Hollywood aesthetic with unexpectedly modern touches. “What I like most about this place is that it’s young and doesn’t seem dated, yet I feel it’s my grown-up home.”

Sims left her childhood home in Murray, Ky., in 1993. And though she has lived in urban meccas like New York, Los Angeles and Paris over the past dozen or so years, the former model still hasn’t lost her sense of Southern charm—or her accent. “This place is very
